Rothman Gallery at F&M College
7 P.M.

Mr. Burns: A Post Electric Play

Schnader Theatre at F&M College 7 P.M. (Through October 28)

Anne Washburn's contemporary play is a dark comedy that is part pop-culture explosion, part post-apocalyptic exploration. As the characters come to terms with the near-extinction of the human race, following an apocalyptic event that effectively turns out the lights of the world, they tell and retell and stage and restage their memories of episodes from the Simpsons. As time in the play progresses, so too the theatrical genre morphs: the first act is a slice of naturalism, the final act a sung-through musical.

Prior to Equal and Unequal: On Phenomenology & Perception

F&M College

Presented by Stephan Kaufer, John Williamson Nevin Memorial Professor of Philosophy. We often don't see what we think we see. Drawing on psychology, art, the history of philosophy, optical illusions, and examples from ordinary experiences, the philosophical movement known as phenomenology has pointed out some surprising features of our visual experience and challenged some basic assumptions about vision.

Justin Jones (Bread Tab Artist)/Live Art

551 West · 551 W King St

Justin Jones will be doing live art and have some of this artwork on display and for sale.
